Re: Maine Township RFP Copiers/Print Management

Dear Board Members:

Warehouse Direct appreciates the opportunity to be considered for the above RFP regarding Print Management, Copiers, Printers, and Multi-Function devices. That being said, Warehouse Direct will make one final offer to the Township regarding the equipment we are proposing. At the end of the 28th or 29th lease payment, Maine Township will have full ownership of all devices that the Township selects, there will be NO lease buyout, the Township can keep the units, or turn them back into Warehouse Direct, again, there will be NO lease buyout at the end of this term.

Points of Emphasis: If the Township selects Imagetec, and the HP Copiers/MFP units we would suggest trying the units out for at least a 60 day period at NO charge to the Township, we feel that HP is an excellent solution for printers, but NOT when it comes to a Color or black/white MFP machine. The rigorous output of making books, tri-folding, which the HP units can't do, and the overall volume will NOT stand up in your environment, furthermore, the HP Scanning will need to be addressed, and will not be supported by Warehouse Direct, this will fall into Imagetec's responsibilities, and the Township should get 100% clarification that there is NO charge for this at ANYTIME during the lease period.

Maine Township Copier RFP
December 2018

To summarize, Maine Township will OWN the equipment at the end of the 28 or 29 month lease period with Warehouse Direct, and the HP machines being suggested by Imagetech will NOT be supported from a scanning/IT Services stand-point, this will fall into Imagetech's responsibility, and Maine Township should get clarification that there will be NO charge for any type of call related to scanning, and training.

Thank You again for this opportunity.

Sincerely,

Bob Nicolin

Attention Board of Trustees
Maine Township
1700 Ballard Road
Park Ridge, IL 60068

Dear Trustees,

Imagetec L.P. has been a provider of multifunctional printers and the associated services since 1992. We have made every effort to provide you with the best combination of price, terms, quality of equipment, vendor support and service.

We appreciate you considering our offer. HP has announced new pricing which impacts the program offered and I want to extend that savings to you at your option. For your convenience I have attached the original and updated pricing.

Highlights:

- Lease to own
- HP Security Features
- Ricoh 5500 Smart-Board (in addition to Sharp Aquos as specified in RFP).

As I outlined in the board meeting on November 27th, Network Security has become a primary concern when considering end point devices such as multifunctional printers. Today's printers are effectively computers on your network. We are recommending HP units that are the only devices with all of the following security features (see enclosed informational flyer):

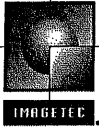

- HP Sure Start - BIOS protection with self-healing
- HP Whitelisting – Ensures known good firmware is loaded
- HP Run-Time intrusion detection – prevents unexpected memory changes
- HP Connection Inspector – Inspects outgoing network connections to stop suspicious request and thwart malware.

I look forward to working with you in an effort to maximize your investment with what you will find to be the new standard of multifunctional technology.

All the best,

Someone hacked printers worldwide, urging people to subscribe to PewDiePie

Is your printer secure?

Patricia Hernandez • Nov 30, 2018, 11:04am EST

The fight over who gets to have the most-subscribed channel on YouTube spilled into the real world months ago when Felix “PewDiePie” Kjellberg fans started campaigning to raise awareness of the Swedish star. The grassroots effort has, for the most part, been in good fun — but recently, people on social media have reported being hacked by someone who is urging them to subscribe to PewDiePie.

Kjellberg has maintained his status as the top channel on YouTube for years now, but recently, his claim to the throne has been increasingly threatened by T-Series, a channel owned by an Indian music production company. T-Series’ growth rate in 2018 has been explosive: it currently has over 72 million subscribers, placing it behind Kjellberg by around 150,000 fans. Judging by T-Series’ subscriber trajectory, many onlookers estimate that the channel will eventually outgrow PewDiePie, but Kjellberg and his fans are putting up a fight.

Kjellberg’s recent uploads often feature segments where he asks fans to convince people to subscribe to him. As a result, PewDiePie fans have done everything from placing posters to playing Kjellberg’s diss track against T-Series at the club. One YouTuber launched a citywide advertising campaign where they bought every single billboard, radio spot, and local TV spot available in support of PewDiePie’s channel. Together, fans have ensured that Kjellberg remains narrowly ahead of T-Series for longer than anyone expected.

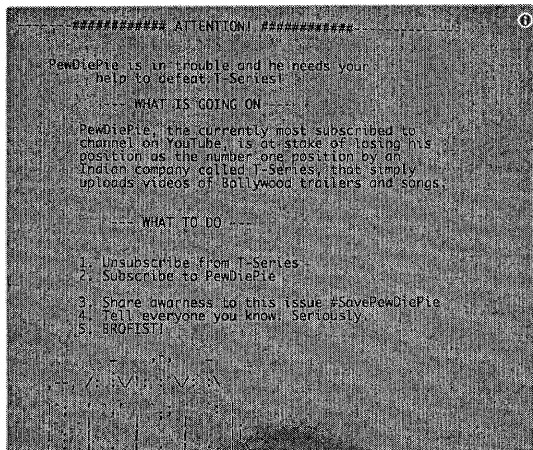

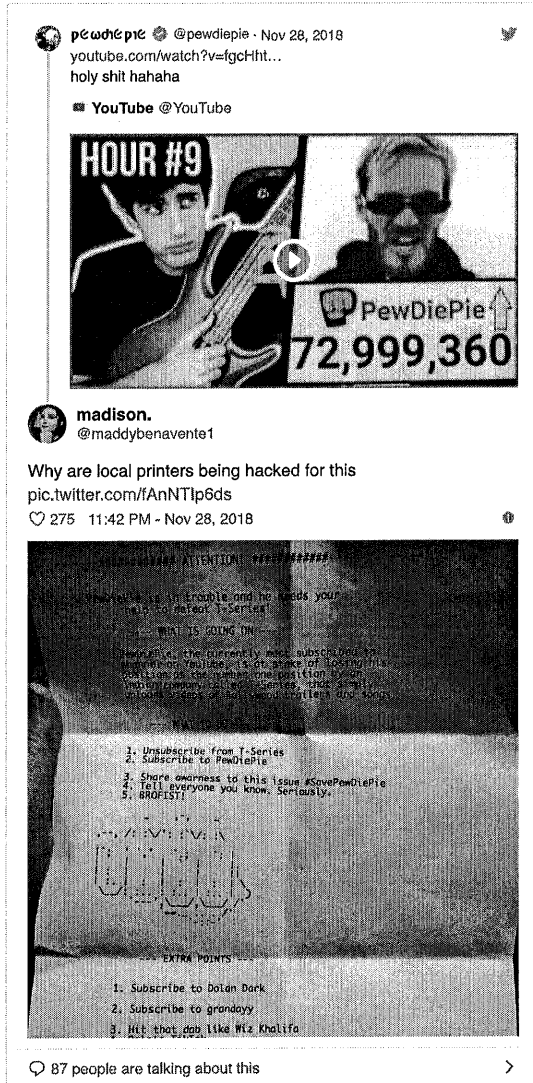

Over the last couple of days, Twitter users have been posting screenshots of unsolicited printouts from internet-connected printers that say that PewDiePie needs their help. “PewDiePie, the currently most subscribed to channel on YouTube, is at stake of losing his position as the number one position by an Indian company called T-Series that simply uploads videos of Bollywood trailers and campaigns,” the sheet says. The printout tells people to subscribe to Kjellberg and to “tell everyone you know” about the YouTube race. At the end, there’s an ASCII figure of a “brofist,” a gesture that Kjellberg is known for. The screenshots have no specific origin; users from Canada to the UK have purportedly received it.

— JessicaJellyfish (@Jessjellyfishh) November 28, 2018

A hacker on Twitter has claimed responsibility for the printouts, stating that the stunt is apparently their way of raising awareness of printer security.

According to @TheHackerGiraffe's tweets, they took advantage of an open network port available on hundreds of thousands of printers worldwide. This is a known vulnerability that allows printers to receive data. To do it, the hacker claims that they used a tool called PRET that, according to its GitHub page, allows attackers to "captur[e] or manipulat[e] print jobs, accessing the printer's file system and memory or even causing physical damage to the device."

"Your printer is exposed," TheHackerGiraffe told a user on Twitter. "I'm trying to warn you to close it, how else am I gonna get your attention?"

"I didn't think this would work when I did it," TheHackerGiraffe said on Twitter. The Verge has reached out to the hacker asking for proof tying them to the exploit, and we will update this post once we hear back.

Update November 30th 1:10 PM: TheHackerGiraffe told The Verge that he got the idea for the hack while browsing Shodan.io, a repository for internet-connected devices. Here, they claim that they found 800,000 available printers, and decided to attack 50,000 of them.

"People underestimate how easy a malicious hacker could have used a vulnerability like this to cause major havoc," TheHackerGiraffe said. "Hackers could have stolen files, installed malware, caused physical damage to the printers and even use the printer as a foothold into the inner network."

"The most horrifying part is: I never considered hacking printers before, the whole learning, downloading and scripting process took no more than 30 minutes."

SERVICE AT DPOE

PROACTIVE NOT REACTIVE

With over 40 qualified field technicians to support and service your equipment we are proud of our approach to service. Each technician receives an average of four weeks manufacturer's training to keep up with new technology and stocking over one million dollars in parts and supplies, "Proactive not Reactive" is our service creed.

Our first line of attack is a proactive approach to monitoring your fleet. We use remote software that alerts us at the first sign of trouble. One of our helpdesk associates will contact you to see if the problem requires a technician or can simply be fixed over the phone. Our helpdesk center is open from 8:30am – 5:00pm Monday – Friday.

If the problem is not solvable over the phone, a technician will be dispatched and arrive at your location within 4 hours.

Should the problem be serious enough that the machine is down for more than 16 business hours, we will supply a loaner machine to you while escalating the issue to the manufacturer who will then repair or replace the equipment.
